

Track Meet: Campolindo, Acalanes, and College Park

By Malia McClurg

Campolindo, Acalanes and College Park met March 28 at Campolindo to compete in a DFAL track meet. Acalanes swept the men's side, but fell to Campolindo on the women's.

For the Acalanes men, Anderson helped his team as he easily glided past his competition and onto victory in both the 110 and 300 hurdles. Anderson's teammate, Beach, also put some points on the board by winning the endurance testing two mile race in a time of 9:41.

On the women's side, Campolindo found success. Jung's first place jump reached the 15 foot, 11 inches mark, but she didn't stop there. She went on to also win the triple jump with a 35-5.5 mark as well as the pole vault by soaring over 11 feet.

In the frosh/soph bracket, over on Campolindo's side, the Cougar boys dominated the distance races by winning the 1600m, 800m, and 3200m. The boys weren't the only standouts. For the Frosh Soph girls, Hubert put up a 19.5 in the 100 Hurdles, and a 54.9 in the 300 Hurdles.

The athletes performed again at the Stanford Invitational on Saturday. Campolindo junior, Jackie Attiyeh sailed over the pole vault and improved her previous best by six inches. Fellow classmate, Stacey Jung, also had an outstanding performance as she reached success in the triple jump by reading the 35 foot mark for the first time this season.

Baseball Opens West Coast Conference Play at Pepperdine

By Jennifer Wake

Going in with a record of 16-9-1, the Saint Mary's baseball team headed to Malibu on Friday to face the tenth-ranked Pepperdine Waves, opening a three-game weekend of West Coast Conference play at Eddy D. Field Stadium. Since 1971, the two programs have met 109 times with Pepperdine holding a commanding 88-21 advantage. The last time the Gaels won at Eddy D. Field Stadium was in 2003. The Gaels dropped all three games to the Waves last season.

"With the conference slate about to begin, this is where we get a real gauge on where we stand," head coach Jedd Soto said. "We have re-14-13 record.

Sophomore infielder Joel Staples continues to lead the way for the Gaels. In the last five games played, Staples has smacked four home runs and driven in 10 runs. Staples sports a team-leading six homers on the season which ranks second in the WCC. Saint Mary's senior Eric Cattoni jumped into sixth place all-time in stolen bases with 39, in just one and a half seasons. With six more runs scored this season, Cattoni will crack the top-10 for runs in a single season.

"Eric (Cattoni) has made us go and has been a great leader on and off the field. His speed can change a game," said

SMC senior Eric Cattoni at the plate.
Soto, adding, "Sean (Gleason) has been the mainstay in our staff and has really proved to be one of the Conference's finest, [while] Randy (Wells) has had no problem with the transition from high school and is proving to be one of the top freshmen in the nation."

Saint Mary's will return home and face No. 20-ranked San Diego for a WCC series three-game set, starting Thursday, April 5. The first pitch is slated for 3 p.m. at Louis Guisto Field.

Professor of the Year Lawrence Cory SMC Biology Professor Finds Joy of Life in Science

By Jennifer Wake

It's a simple fact. Some people have more energy than others. If you stand next to someone like biology professor Lawrence Cory, who was honored last Friday by his Saint Mary's colleagues at a special presentation in Brousseau Hall, you can almost feel the energy emanating from him.

During the 1960s, Cory, now 89, and fellow professor Brother Dominic Ruegg would backpack into areas with neoprene diving suits, snorkels and weights, disrupting tranquil fishermen to dive in search of frog specimens.

"Although Larry's pack was far heavier than mine, he plodded along like a deer and would arrive two hours ahead of me," Ruegg wrote in a statement read at the ceremony. Even today, after finishing a full day of teaching, Cory goes home, changes his clothes and is off hiking for miles in the surrounding hills, searching for salamanders and toads.

"When he's hiking, he's like a kid in a candy store," said his wife, Suzanne. "When we hiked together, he would name all the birds we could hear, telling me their habitat, what they ate, everything about them. It was like being married to John Muir."

In addition to his love of birds and frogs, Cory is a violinist who makes fiddles as a hobby. "Once he injured his left index finger (the most important finger needed to play), but instead of giving up, he decided to learn to play the fiddle backwards, and built a fiddle in reverse," said Suzanne, who has been married to Cory for 35 years. "He's fascinated by challenges. He decided it would be an interesting neurological experiment."

Through his research in the 1970s, Cory opened the public's eyes to the dangers of DDT, publishing papers on the subject. His testimony before federal lawmakers contributed to a ban on the pesticide. Cory was recently named professor of the year at the college, after 55 years of teaching, researching, and lecturing at Saint Mary's. And he has no plans to stop anytime soon.

"People ask me when I'm going to retire," he said. "I don't know. You go as long as you go."

Cory and wife, Suzanne, visit with former SMC president Brother Mel Anderson at ceremony.

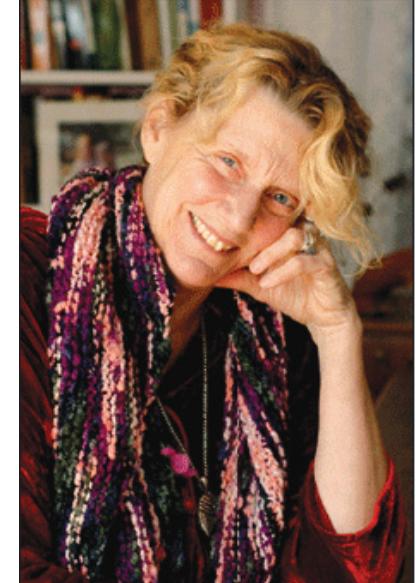

Author Speaks About Courage, Change

By Jennifer Wake

When Abigail Thomas's husband, Rich, was hit by a car, his brain shattered, forcing him to live the rest of his life in an institution.

Through the tragedy, Thomas came to realize that although "you might not find meaning in disaster, you might – with effort – make something useful of it."

As part of the Saint Mary's College Creative Writing Reading Series, Thomas will discuss her poignant memoir, "A Three Dog Life," which tells the story of great courage and change, on Wednesday, April 11 at 7:30 p.m. in the Soda Activity Center.

Abigail Thomas

The book recounts how Thomas built a new life by moving to a small country town, creating a new family composed of three dogs, knitting, and friendship, and how she faced down guilt and discovered gratitude. The memoir also explores her relationship with Rich, a man who "lives in the eternal present, and the eerie poetry of his often uncanny perceptions."

In addition to "A Three Dog Life," Thomas is the author of two collections of short stories, "Herb's Pajamas" and "Getting over Tom," the novel "An Actual Life" and another memoir, "Safekeeping." She teaches fiction writing in the graduate program at The New School and lives in Woodstock, New York.

Abigail Thomas, the daughter of renowned science writer Lewis Thomas (The Lives of a Cell, etc.), is the mother of four children and the grandmother of twelve. Her academic education stopped when, pregnant with her oldest daughter, she was asked to leave Bryn Mawr during her first year. She's lived most of her life on Manhattan's Upper West Side, and was for a time a book editor and for another time a book agent. Then she started writing for publication. A Three Dog Life is her fifth book; the most recent, Safekeeping, is also a memoir.
