

Winter Nights and High Holidays at Temple Isaiah

By Cathy Dausman

Strength. Inspiration. Renewal. Those words are often bandied about in December. Yet while many of us frantically scrounge for “the perfect gift,” Lafayette’s Temple Isaiah taps hundreds of volunteers to care for homeless families through the Contra Costa Interfaith Alliance’s Winter Nights program.

The temple is hosting families for the eighth year, December 20 through January 1. While many local churches also volunteer for this event, Communications Director Deb Phillips says, “Temple Isaiah traditionally hosts during the Christmas holiday because it is a less busy time here than it is in the local churches.” Their congregation is so committed to the program they’ll do it even though all eight nights of Hanukkah fall within their obligation this year. Hanukkah began at sundown December 20th.

Not to worry, says temple Winter Nights coordinator Rebecca Calahan-Klein. Admittedly, “it’s gonna be a busy time,” but she says temple members observe their major celebrations (Rosh Hashanah and Yom Kippur) in the fall. Calahan-Klein, along with husband Jonathan Klein, and Jeff and Tina Goodfriend work to house, feed and support nearly three dozen visitors, more than half of them children, at the temple for two weeks, 5:00 p.m. to 7:00 a.m. weekdays and around the clock on weekends and holidays. That means preparing some 3500 meals and filling 700 volunteer job slots. And they’ll do it in true interfaith style.

Winter Nights meal standards call for only cold breakfasts (plus a sack lunch and hot dinner), but Temple Isaiah provides hot breakfasts. All meals are served on temple dishes and flatware, making each occasion an oneg (joyful meal). Program participants will take outings to the San Francisco Exploratorium and the Oakland Zoo. There are Hanukkah and Christmas celebrations too -- December 23 (Hanukkah) and December 24 and 25. Christmas celebrations include a gift “shop” and Santa Claus himself. “You rarely see a synagogue celebrating Christmas in this way,” says Phillips.

At the end, there’s a New Year’s Eve party featuring kosher catered food donated by a Lafayette owned catering business.

Rabbi Judy Shanks and her colleague Rabbi Roberto Graetz are both active members of the Interfaith Council of Contra Costa County (<http://interfaithccc.org/>).
