Boaters lap up the last days of summer on the Res

Berkeley residents Sharon and Charlie enjoy the new pedal boats at the Res.

Observant residents might have noticed a decided sparkle to the new ones. "We have found that over time, the color and finish of a 'sparkly' pedal boat will last longer and look better than a non-'sparkly' pedal boat," explains Sporleder.

He says they are in the process of switching all the old row boats out with new ones too.

"The hull of the new and old rowboats are composed of aluminum. The old rowboats had wooden seat tops and the new rowboats have aluminum seats. The aluminum seats will last longer over time," says Sporleder.

In addition to the pedal and rowboats, they also offer two single and one double kayak for rent. Sporleder says maybe once or twice a year they run out of all 20 pedal boats and have to use a waiting list.

While it hardly comes under the category of extreme water sporting at the Res, Sporleder says that occasionally on very windy days, boaters with limited experience will need assistance returning to the rental dock. "For safety, we will assist, utilizing our powerboat."

In addition to boat rentals available to those 18 and older, the park allows private car-top boats to be launched for a fee.
