The city of Lafayette launched a new program, "Slow Down Lafayette," the week of Aug. 7, which involve utilizing several new portable speed display signs and trailers, which not only provides passing motorists with their speed but also provides police and city traffic engineers with traffic volume and speed information and helps support the city's other traffic calming efforts.

"Speed is the most critical factor that affects the severity of injuries, and while enforcement is part of how we reduce speed, our increased focus will be on real-time awareness for drivers and community education," explained Police Chief Ben Alldritt.

The city has launched a new webpage, www.love-lafayette.org/slowdown which will provide information about the data collected from the new equipment, as well as safety tips for drivers, pedestrians and cyclists.

"Our goal is to decrease speeds and increase awareness, reducing the number of crashes on local streets," said Lafayette Mayor Carl Anduri. "We're all in this together, so we are asking everyone who drives through Lafayette to commit to driving at or below the posted speed limits."

For more information on the Slow Down Lafayette program, you can contact the Police Department via email at 94549Traffic@gmail.com.

Las Trampas receives $1.35M Legacy Gift

Photo provided

The daughters of Terry Haws, Las Trampas' founding father, presented Las Trampas with his Legacy Gift of $1.35 million on July 28. Las Trampas supports adults with developmental disabilities to discover their capabilities and lead full lives in their home, at work, and in the community. Haws family and friends, as well as Las Trampas supporters, parents, and participants, met in the Nina Haws Community Hall at Las Trampas to honor Haws' life, and his unmatched generosity and contributions as the founding father of the organization. Speeches were made by those closest to him prior to the presentation of Haws' significant Legacy Gift.
